

Acid-base balance and osmoregulation in marine fish

How marine fish cope with their challenging and dehydrating saltwater environment is not fully understood and interactions between salinity, temperature and ocean acidification stressors deserves further attention

