One of the key uncertainties in projecting future climate change is predicting the response of clouds to a warming climate. Recent research has shown that the response of clouds (or cloud feedback) is strongly linked to changes in the atmospheric circulation. This project will unravel the ties between global warming, the atmospheric circulation, and cloud feedback.

Dr. Brian Soden, bsoden@rsmas.miami.edu